THE SALT LAKE HERALD.

HONEST PEOPLE THEIR VICTIMS

Tricks Played by the Imps of Darkness.

IN A HURRY FOR HALLOWE'EN

HOW CITIZENS WITH NERVES ARE MADE TO SUFFER.

The Brownies are having a hard tim to keep from celebrating Hallowe'er shead of time this year. Either Lecause hey lost their almanaes or because the were unable to hold themselves in till the proper time their high jinks be-gan last night, and it will not be surpris-ing if this morning a good portion of the city has the appearance of being storm-swent

Darkness had hardly fallen upon the city last night before the work of the unseen imps was on. Some kind old woman would be near the window it the sitting room reading her evening property parts per commenced to the second state. would be near the window is the sitting room reading her evening prayers, perhaps, when a sound like the ripping of the universe would land her quivering with fear behind the sofa on the other side of the room. This noise is something fearful for delicate nerves. The infernal machine by which it is produced is simple and costs little, more is the pity. A large spool is taken as the basis. Teeth are cut all around the edge of the widest part. A nail is passed through the spool and a string is wound round it. When the victim is located the edge of the spool are placed against the window and the string is pulled with a jerk. The spool revolving on the nail makes an internal, rapping noise not unlike that made by a circular saw when it strikes a log. This instrument of torture is popular this year—among the kids. It takes the place of the tick-tacks.

Gates Begin to Disappear.

Gates Begin to Disappear.

Missing gates at an early hour last evening told the people of Saht Lake that Hallowe'en was at hand. Some of these gates were found high in the poplar trees, where they had been put for safety by the Brownies. Horses, cows, calves and colts were found transferred from their homes to the homes of their neighbors, or allowed to wander at will over bors, or allowed to wander at will over the city. One young man who was plan-ning to take his sweetheart out for a drive found one of the front wheels of his buggy on the rear axle and the rear wheel on in front. He got in and started be-fore he noticed this peculiarity. For a time he rocked from side to side as if ha a storm-tossed boat. Then he got out to investigate, only to find his wrench gone. His sweetheart waited patiently while he His sweetheart waited patiently while he was putting things to rights.

Trouble in Sight Tonight.

Trouble in Sight Tonight.

If what was done last night is any indication of what is to be expected when Hallowe'en really arrives people would be wise to take everything loose indoors this evening and then lock the doors and put out the lights. Some people are determined to celebrate Hallowe'en Oct. 30. The last night in the month is the proper time, if any time may be considered proper for such nefarious doings.

Pumpkin lanterns could be seen flittering in all directions last night, and mysterious whisperings could be heard around almost every corner in the city. Ingenious contrivances covered with phosphorous, demons in all shapes, were not wanting.

The indications are that in a social way Hallowe'en will be observed more generally than usual this year. Many parties and gatherings of various kinds ar scheduled, and it looks now as though the young people would have reason to recall the day with pleasure for a long time to
